Goals for Today

• Answer 2 questions:
  1. During Fall 2011, how many international students applied, were admitted, accepted the admission offer, and registered at UC San Diego?
  2. Are international students struggling academically at UC San Diego?
UC-wide and UC San Diego Goals: Non-Resident Students (domestic and international)

- University of California: Commission on the Future (Nov. 2010)
  - Recommendation 8: Increase Non-Resident Enrollment

- UC San Diego: Chancellor Fox’s international mission and goals (Dec. 2010)
  - Goal 2: Increase the number of international scholars and students on campus; increase the engagement with these scholars and students in campus academic and social life.

- UC San Diego: Student Affairs’ strategic goals (Sept. 2011)
  - Area 1: Prepare, attract and enroll students of the highest capability who are representative of the diversity of the people of California.
  - Area 4: Provide experiences that foster self-discovery and develop the personal, academic, and professional skills and relationships needed for a successful transition into diverse and global communities.
Methodology

- International students are defined as UC San Diego students who are NOT US citizens, PR, AM, RF, AS, AP or OT.
- Term GPAs from academic year 2010-2011 (FA10, WI11, and SP11).
- Use Week 3 registration data.

Summary: Question #1

- UC San Diego’s international student population is increasing progressively and will continue to do so in the near term.
  - Large and increasing numbers of students from China and South Korea are coming to UC San Diego.
  - Beginning Fall 2011, there were more international undergraduate students than international graduate students at UC San Diego—indicating a shift in the demographics of our international students.

Future Studies Needed

- What explains the paradox between Term GPA and performance SDCC courses
- Correlation between Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) and indicators of academic achievement
- Correlation between Analytical Writing Placement Exam (AWPE) results and indicators of academic achievement
CONCLUSIONS

• UC San Diego’s international student population is increasing progressively and will continue to do so in the near term.
  • Large and increasing numbers of students from China and South Korea are coming to UC San Diego.

• Relatively low percentages of international undergraduates are struggling academically.
  • Less than 10% have GPAs below 2.0 and about 7% have GPAs between 1.00-1.99.

• On average, our international undergraduates are succeeding academically on all indicators that we have examined to date, going back to Fall 2007.
  • About 10% have 4.0 GPAs.
  • More than 50% of students have GPAs between 3.00-3.99.

• Despite low marks in SDCC Courses, international undergraduate students are succeeding academically.
  • Average GPA is 3.31.

• This is a pattern that warrants a recalibration of the way we are providing services to ensure a high degree of student satisfaction.
